You know...
Every once in a while, a wandering merchant comes by my workshop to drop off different ingredients. Not only does he bring rare things from all over the land, but he also brings news that I wouldn't have heard of otherwise, for which I'm really thankful.

Lately, the flow of mana has been pretty bad. A lot of my colleagues got attacked by monsters and beasts, and it's becoming a problem.
...Yeah, I also got attacked by a king grizzly in the mountains not so long ago...
Before seeing him off, I gave my old friend a mix of tobacco and herbs that smell unpleasant to beasts, but the interaction reminded me of the time Reszurre used her voice to calm the bear we met on our way to Adam.
Now that I think of it, Reszurre stopped that bear with just her voice...
I'm being careful wherever I go, of course, but I was wondering if you had some sort of beast repellant or something?
